

DA KUBE

DA KUBE

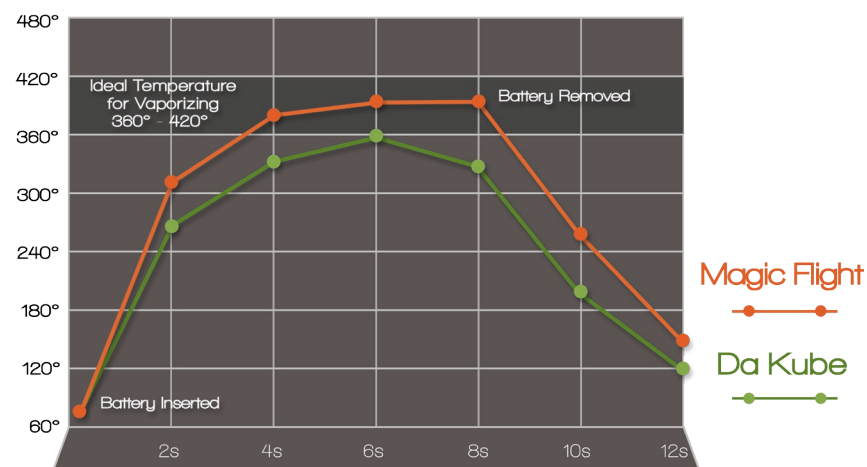

Da Kube entered the portable vaporizer market with its knock-off Launch Box in 2011. As the most commonly seen knockoff, Da Kube is found in shops across Europe as well as the USA. We compared the performance, craftsmanship and safety between the two products, and are dedicated to stopping this counterfeit.

- 1 Crooked and baggy screen.
- 2 Screen bond is noticeably misplaced, not properly connecting screen to rails.
- 3 Glass dust in draw stem is a potential health issue.
- 4 Poor workmanship and low attention to detail.

- Dangerous Debris: Splinters are found throughout the Da Kube, mainly around bored-out holes and along air passageways. Even more concerning was glass dust found in the included draw stem.
- Inconsistent Heat: Da Kube routinely tested below effective vaporizing temperature. Many factors contribute to low heat output: Incomplete and misplaced screen bonds, badly formed screen, a crooked screen, and loose tension in the battery hole.
- No Click-Lock and Loose Lid: Both of these factors can lead to herb spilling out between uses, lost vapor and odor during usage.
- No Included Instructions: Although seemingly simple in design, this style of portable vaporizer needs detailed instructions to use to its full potential.
- No Lifetime Warranty: No customer support or warranty information included.
