

DRAGON-LITE

Lurking around since 2011, Dragon-Lite compares itself to the Magic-Flight Launch Box for a fraction of the price. Based on our investigation and user feedback, you get what you pay for.

- 1 Incomplete bonds lead to low heat output.
- 2 Badly formed, baggy screen.
- 3 Cheap, plastic accessories.
- 4 For adequate vapor production, user has to provide own batteries and use with easily misplaced sleeve.

- Inadequate Heat: Our tests indicate the Dragon-Lite doesn't generate enough heat to produce efficient vapor. Numerous construction issues contribute to this: a crooked, badly formed screen, a shallow trench, and spotty, weak bonds.

- Batteries: Batteries and charger do not come with kit, and easily misplaced sleeve has to be used for unit to function.

- Warranty Issues: Stated as a "Lifetime Manufacturers Limited Warranty." The company is difficult to contact, sometimes doesn't respond, and charges +$15 to fulfill warranty.

- Bad company ethics: Numerous online posts and reviews of Dragon-Lite reveal unsatisfactory, and sometimes offensive encounters with their company. For further insight, please view the "Dragon-Lite Portable" thread on www.fuckcombustion.com.

- Manufactured in China: Use of plastic and other unknowable materials from China is a potential safety issue, especially for medicinal users with compromised immune systems.
